Can you help?

Street parties have been held by local communities as a way of celebrating events of national significance for over a hundred years.

Photographs in the Falmouth History Archive show street parties that took place locally following the end of the Second World War, and those held to celebrate Queen Elizabeth II's Coronation in June 1953.

A recent visitor to our archives can remember, as a small child, going to a street party in Smithick Hill, held to celebrate the end of the Second World War.

Unfortunately, although we have searched our archives, we cannot locate any photographs of that event and we would love to hear from anyone who knows more or has a photograph of the Smithick Hill street party.
